“ i had a great time visiting with Arnold in his home a few months ago we laughed and talked for over an hour,we reminisced about our up bringing we talked about our moms old hearts and pains, this is his friend Popsicle sharing our last moments, its funny how life just fades out,it reminds me of a parking meter time just runs out i remember when my mom would give me permission to go down and play with Arnold and Ronald, she would say you all can play just for an hour and no longer and no matter how much fun we were having i could fill the forces of my moms authority saying time is up' guess what folks its the same way with life the father had a set time for my friend and no matter how much fun he was having the forces of God the father was far greater RIP my friend"" a stones throw from his house when growing up"
