“ Harry was very pleasant to talk to enjoyed the laughs we shared together. He was a true gentleman and man that everyone respected. Smith tower will not be the same without Harry. I always looked forward to working in Smith knowing that Harry would be there. Harry you will be truly missed.

I am praying for Harry's family keep the faith and hold to God's unchanging hand.

“ Kent was one of my favorite people at the Post, and later at the Chronicle. His energy and enthusiasm were always uplifting, and for us copy editors he was the "go-to" guy for help with a problem page. Just last Tuesday night, Laura Weisman mentioned his name as we walked through the old composing room after our shift at the Chronicle, wondering where he was and how he was doing. While it's sad to know that we won't see his smiling face again here on Earth, it's good to know that he's spreading joy among the angels. Blessings to his family.
