“ When i first met shelly was in detention in 6th grade lol. I remember him making me laugh so much because he was so hilarious. I remember him talking my ears off about everything and anything then he finally went to sleep (mind you we were suppose to be quiet and re writing a paper that was already written as our punishment) any way before he fell asleep he gave me a cookie he had. I remember it was a lemon cream cookie i think and he told me he wasn't suppose to be eating the cookies anyway because he had diabetes and his blood sugar would be high, so when he fell asleep i took all his cookies out his pocket and ate them, so when he woke up he looked in his pocket and saw his cookies was all gone and looked at me and his face looked angry and before he could say anything i told him " you wasn't suppose to be eating them things anyway" he just looked at me and bust out laughing and we had been friends ever since... i miss that boy so much his smile was perfect<3 - Zayna

“ I remember the first day we met bro...I couldn't get you outta my hair man!!!!Lol
Everywhere I turned you were there...
I am so sorry that I wasn't the man you needed me to be,I wish I could've been a better role model for you...I wish I could have told you that it was more to life than just kicking it...But you were far from stupid bro,you had dreams and goals that I swear will live me...I love you family...

“ 4 months without you and I still cry its still hard for me.. people say it will get easier but the only thing that's getting easier is hiding the pain. You coming in someones dream to tell them to be a true friend to me and be there cause I'm hurting to bad..let's me know the ONLY person I thought who cared for me and always had my back never left me..never stopped...now I just know you still get that feeling when you know there's something wrong with me...but I'm worrying you and I don't wanna do that. You left me so many memories and that is what lives forever. Your baby cousin is clearly taking it hard but I know who's by my side in this..God you just mean so much to me. Words can't even begin to describe it. I just want you back, and the worst thing about it is I can't. I couldn't even say goodbye. I miss you soooooo much. I love you shelly. your little soilder- Ebony<3

“ Dear Shelly,

I wish you could read this for yourself. I haven't really settled with the fact that your gone. I still wait for your surprise pop ups at school and that same sentence you say to me when you see me. "man chey, you my lil sister but don't play with me now" god how I miss the times we had. I remember in junior high, there was always someone trying to size you up but you wasn't having hat. overall your spirits were great no matter how many people looked down on you. I loved you like we had the same parents or something. Every time someone was in trouble that was your friend they would call you on speed dail. it was because they knew you would come protect them. But I always questioned if they would protect you? I wish I could've protected you. Im sorry If I let you down. But god has plans for every one and I know he had good plans for you and that was to be with him. you are very missed on earth and you've touched many hearts I just pray ill be able to accept that soon.

I love you my big brother

“ Regaurdless of who you were shelly made in impact on you . I remeber the first day let him I swear I fell in love . He was always honest and had good intentions . He would of been a star I swear . Everyday I wake up I think you you shelly and how blessed I was to know you . I can admit I cry time to time and get to regreting not spending more time with you. But theres something about you that makes me smile about you . Im over being sad . Godhad a special place for up there . You were a misunderstood young man but look were it got you.. your an angel . I love you shelly dearly . We all do . Well meet someday an all be happy and laugh . But for now . Watch us all aspire to be the greastest in your memory with your blessings. Rest in peace Shelly D Wilson
